SECTION I:
ABOUT THE RIDDLE OF THE CROWN JEWELS
Preface to the Story
In The Riddle of the Crown Jewels, you play the role of Doctor Watson. You have received an urgent summons to the rooms of your good friend Sherlock Holmes by his landlady, Mrs. Hudson. Normally you are not up and about so early on a Saturday. But here you are, outside the Baker Street residence, and not a moment too soon: for the fog has thickened and traveling is difficult since you can’t see more than a few feet in front of you.

Hints
The Riddle of the Crown Jewels is partly a story for you to read and partly puzzles for you to solve. If you feel stuck on any puzzle in The Riddle of the Crown Jewels, you can type HINT and press the RETURN (or ENTER) key. Then follow the instructions on your screen. Most of the hints are nudges in the right direction; the last hint in a sequence is usually a complete answer.

Sample Transcript and Map
This transcript is not from The Riddle of the Crown Jewels, but it does show many of the usual things you can do in the story. It shows a few simple puzzles and their solutions, and it will give you a good idea of how Infocom’s interactive fiction works. The player’s commands appear in capital letters after each prompt (>). The map shows the layout of the rooms in the sample transcript as you might have drawn it.

"Well, Doctor, it seems that I shall have the honour of providing you with more material with which you may exaggerate and glorify my most elementary deductions. What do you make of this?" Holmes hands you a piece of paper.

>READ THE PAPER
"A thorny problem, a maiden’s name, A cheeky colour, ’tis all the same, in Lavenshire he’s heard of sheep, A stone’s throw away from, you’ll sleep."

Holmes hands you your hat and coat and ushers you outside. "Let us go to Lavenshire at once. Here’s the train schedule," he says, pressing it into your hand. "Lead the way, Watson, so that I may reflect upon the riddle." Holmes furrows his brow and half closes his eyes in concentration.
221B Baker Street
You are standing outside Holmes’s residence on Baker Street. The door to the house is to the west. The street continues north and south. Holmes stands nearby, deep in thought.

>INVENTORY
You are carrying a whistle, a train schedule, a riddle, a pound note, and a shilling, and your hat and coat.

The cool damp air makes your bones shiver.

>W
Outside Victoria Station
Holmes ambles along behind you, shaking his head.

>BLOW THE WHISTLE
Tweeeee!

>AGAIN
Tweeeeee!

Holmes looks at you expectantly.

>LOOK AT HOLMES
Holmes is wearing his cape and deerstalker cap. He is watching you carefully, as if he expects you to surprise him.

A hansom cab pulls up beside you.

>GET IN HANSOM CAB
You get into the cab. Holmes seats himself next to you.

"Where to, guv’nor?" asks the driver.

>KING’S CROSS STATION
"King’s Cross Station it is, then," says the driver. You are thrown to the back of your seat as the cab races through the streets, and moments later, you find yourself outside King’s Cross Station.

Holmes is clearly pleased. "Good show, Watson! We’ll get to Lavenshire yet." He immediately furrows his brow again and thinks of the case that lies ahead, meditating with such concentration that he appears to be in a near-hypnotic state.

>GET OUT OF THE CAB
You get out of the cab, and Holmes follows. The cab drives away and disappears.

Outside King’s Cross Station Streets head off to the east and west, and the entrance to King’s Cross Station lies to the north. Across the street to the south, an old woman with a pushcart sells flowers.

>TIME
It is 10:25.

>S
Holmes follows you across the street.

By the Pushcart
A dirty woman dressed all in grey stands here next to her wooden pushcart, which is full of bright and beautiful flowers. "Buy some flowers, gentlemen? For your wives or lady friends?"

>LOOK AT THE FLOWERS
The pushcart is covered with carnations, roses, tulips, verbena, irises, lobelia, chrysanthemums, and daisies.
>BUY ROSES
"Ah, lovely, lovely. That'll be two shillings for a dozen, then."
Holmes nods at you appreciatively. "A thorny problem, a maiden's name, a cheeky colour, 'tis all the same. Roses! Good show, Watson!"

>HAGGLE WITH THE WOMAN
The old woman frowns. "But sir, these roses are good enough for the Queen herself. All right, then, one shilling six."

>AGAIN
"But sir, look at the color, the rich ruby red. Look at the stems, sir, long, beautiful, tapered stems. The finest roses in all of England, and you, a gentleman, want to steal them from me? Impossible, sir, impossible for me to settle for anything less than a shilling."

>GIVE SHILLING TO WOMAN
The woman takes the coin, shoving it into the folds of her clothing, then hands you a dozen roses. "Anything for you, sir?" she asks Holmes. But Holmes, again lost in thought, does not reply.

>N.N
Holmes follows you across the street.

Outside King's Cross Station
Holmes follows you into the station.

King's Cross Station
Unlike Victoria Station at this hour, King's Cross Station is bustling with activity. To the west, a train on the platform hisses impatiently as porters assist passengers and load baggage. Families give their tearful farewells to loved ones, and children run amid the crowds and columns. Beggars shake their tin cups at top-hatted gentlemen and perfumed ladies. At the northern end of the platform, a uniformed stationmaster watches over all, occasionally checking the watch he holds in his hand. The station may be exited to the south.

>TIME
It is 10:35.

>GO NORTH
Holmes follows you.

End of Platform
The platform is less crowded here. The stationmaster barely glances at you, then looks at his watch and studies the Pamela bonnet behind you.

>BUY TWO TICKETS TO LAVENSHIRE
The stationmaster pulls a large pad from a deep pocket, rins two tickets from it, and with an efficiency acquired from years of practice, punches them to show date, point of departure, destination, and price. He hands you the tickets and says, "One pound, sir."

>GIVE POUND NOTE TO THE STATIONMASTER
"Thank you, sir."

>BOARD THE TRAIN
You find an empty compartment toward the front of the train, and you and Holmes settle yourselves. Holmes is still lost in thought.

Train Berth
You are sitting in a small but comfortable berth. You may exit the train via the door to the east, or enter the train's corridor to the west. Holmes sits opposite you, his eyes now completely shut in intense concentration.

Outside you hear the stationmaster shout "All aboard!"

>WAIT UNTIL 11:40
Time passes...

The train pulls out of the station.

A conductor enters the berth, checks your tickets, and leaves.

Time passes...

The train slows down and pulls into a station. A voice outside shouts "Bellingdon!" Do you wish to keep waiting? >Y

The train slows down and pulls into a station. A voice outside yells "Lavishshire!"

It is now 11:40.

>WEST
You step out of the train, and Holmes follows you.

Lavishshire Station
The air here, anywhere in the English countryside, seems remarkably pure compared to London's. A stationmaster, somewhat older and taller than the one at King's Cross, stands lookout to the north. The train hisses on the western track. The station may be exited to the south.

>S
Holmes follows you outside the station.

Outside Lavishshire Station
You are in the quiet English countryside. The Lavishshire train station lies to the north, and a small road runs east to west. A bearded shepherd stands alone nearby, holding his staff.

Holmes whispers to you, "Odd, is it not, Watson, that the shepherd has no flock? Perhaps 'heard of sheep' is our punster's way of referring to a shepherd. Perhaps this fellow might provide us with some guidance."
About the Author
Bob Bates, a native of Greenbelt, Maryland, is a disgruntled graduate of Georgetown University and a disgruntled employee of Challenge, Inc. He bewilders his fellow workers by wearing ties to work and by singing unaccompanied four-part harmony at odd times of the day. He seizes any excuse to read all night, and when he can't find an excuse, he does it anyway.

About the Others
The author thanks everyone who helped create this product, especially senior programmer Frederick Witt and programmers Duane Beck and Mark Poesch. So many Infopeople made major contributions—from the testers to the packagers—that it would be unfair to single out just a few. Consequently, the author gratefully acknowledges the help of Stu Galley and Chris Reeves, and he hopes that all the others will be content with the large cash payment they will be receiving any day now. Special thanks are also due to Dave Witt and Anne Mortimer at Challenge, and to Peggy Orians, who not only married the author, but stayed with him through thin and thick.

We gratefully acknowledge The Times of London for their kind permission to reproduce their nameplate and selected stories from their edition of June 17, 1887.

SECTION II:
ABOUT INFOCOM'S INTERACTIVE FICTION

An Overview
Interactive fiction is a story in which you are the main character. Each interactive story, such as The Riddle of the Crown Jewels, tells you about a series of places, things, people, and events. You can move from place to place, use the things you find, and interact with the other people, to affect the outcome of the story.

An important element of interactive fiction is puzzle-solving. If you find a locked door or a watchdog, don't think of it as an obstacle; it's just a puzzle to be tackled. (Find the key that unlocks the door, or figure out how to fool or get around the dog.) Often the best way to solve a puzzle is to find a certain thing in the story, bring it with you, and use it the right way.

When you play The Riddle of the Crown Jewels, the story goes on only if you press the RETURN (or ENTER) key when you see the prompt (>). Nothing happens until you type a sentence and press the RETURN (or ENTER) key, so you can think and plan your turns as slowly and carefully as you want.

Starting and Stopping
Starting the story: To start The Riddle of the Crown Jewels, follow the instructions on the Reference Card in your package. The computer will display the title of the story and ask you to press any key to begin the story. Then the computer will describe the place where the story begins: on Baker Street, outside Sherlock Holmes' residence. Finally the prompt (>) will appear, which means that the computer is ready for your command.

Here are a few inputs for you to try at the first several prompts. After typing each input, don't forget to press the RETURN (or ENTER) key.

>INVENTORY
>LOOK AT THE BLACK BAG
>KNOCK ON THE DOOR
>OPEN THE BAG

Saving and restoring: You will probably have many hours of fun before you finish The Riddle of the Crown Jewels. If you use the SAVE command, you can continue the story at a later time without having to start over from the beginning, just as you can place a bookmark in a book you are reading. When you use the SAVE command, the computer creates a "snapshot" of your place in the story onto another disk. You can also save your place before (or after) trying something dangerous or tricky. That way, you can go back to that point later, even if you get lost or "killed" in the story.

To save your place in the story, type SAVE at the prompt (>) and then press the RETURN (or ENTER) key. Then follow the instructions on your Reference Card for saving and restoring. Some computers require a blank disk, initialized and formatted, for saving your place. If you use a disk with other data on it (not counting other saved places), the data may be destroyed. You can save your place as often as you like, if you use more blank disks.

You can restore a saved place any time you want. To do so, type RESTORE at the prompt (>) and press the RETURN (or ENTER) key. Then follow the instructions on your Reference Card. You can then continue the story from the point where you used the SAVE command.

Quitting and restarting: If you want to start over from the beginning, type QUIT and press the RETURN (or ENTER) key. (This is usually faster than "booting up" again.) Just to make sure, the computer will ask if you really want to start over. If you do, type YES and press the RETURN (or ENTER) key.

If you want to stop entirely, type QUIT and press the RETURN (or ENTER) key. Once again, the computer will ask if this is really what you want to do.

Remember when you QUIT: If you want to be able to return to this point again, you must first use the SAVE command.

Communicating with Infocom's Interactive Fiction
In The Riddle of the Crown Jewels, you type your commands in plain English each time you see the prompt (>). The computer usually acts as if your commands begin with "I want to..." although you shouldn't actually type those words. You can use words like THE if you want, and you can use capital letters if you want; the computer doesn't care either way.

When you have finished typing a command, press the RETURN (or ENTER) key. The computer will then respond, telling you whether your request is possible at this point in the story, and what happened as a result.

The computer looks at only the first nine letters of each of your words, and it ignores any letters after the ninth. For example, the computer would think COUNTERFEIT, COUNTERFEITER and COUNTERFEIT ed are all the same word.

To move around, just type the direction you want to go. Directions can be abbreviated: NORTH to N, SOUTH to S, EAST to E, WEST to W, NORTH-EAST to NE, SOUTH-EAST to SE, SOUTH-WEST to SW, UP to U, and DOWN to D. Remember that IN and OUT will also work in certain places. You don't need to walk around or turn around in a place.

The computer recognizes many different kinds of sentences. Here are several examples. (Some of these things do not actually appear in the story.)

>WALK NORTHEAST
>DOWN
>ROW WEST
>TAKE THE GUN
>OPEN BAG
>LOOK AT THE HAIR THROUGH THE MICROSCOPE
>HOLD THE FRYING PAN OVER THE FIRE
>READ PLAQUE
>EXAMINE THE WATCH WITH THE MAGNIFYING GLASS
>PUT ON THE GLOVES
>KNOCK ON DOOR
The word ALL refers to every visible thing except those inside something else. If there were an apple on the ground and an orange inside a cabinet, TAKE ALL would take the apple but not the orange.

You will meet many interesting people in the story, and you can “talk” to them and give them commands. There are some simple rules to follow when “talking” to people. To “talk” to a person, type the person’s name, then a comma, then whatever you want them to do. For example:

> HOLMES, TELL ME ABOUT THE NOTE
> WIGGINS, FOLLOW ME
> SHERMAN, GIVE ME THE BIRD

You can ask questions by typing ASK (someone) ABOUT (someone or something). For example:

> ASK MYCROFT ABOUT WIGGINS
> ASK HOLMES ABOUT THE RUBY

However, most people in the story don’t care for idle chatter. Your deeds will speak louder than your words.

The computer will try to guess what you really mean if you don’t give it enough information. For example, if you say that you want to do something, but not what you want to do it to or with, the computer may decide that there is only one possible thing that you could mean. When it does so, it will tell you. For example:

> OPEN THE DOOR
Which door do you mean, the front door or the parlor door?
> FRONT
You open the front door, but no one is there.

or

> TAKE THE BUTTERFLY
Which butterfly do you mean, the delicate magenta butterfly or the fat yellow butterfly?

> DELICATE
The delicate magenta butterfly flutters away as you reach for it.

The computer recognizes over 1400 words, nearly all that you are likely to use in your commands. However, there are many words in the story’s descriptions that the computer will not recognize in your sentences. For example, you might read, “The log swirls around you, and the sound of your footsteps seem amplified on the empty cobblestone street.” If the computer doesn’t recognize the words FOG or FOOTSTEPS when you type them, then you know that you don’t need them to finish the story; they just give you a more vivid description of where you are or what is going on.

Special Commands

This is a list of useful one-word commands and their explanations. You can use them whenever you want. Some count as a turn, others do not. Type the command after the prompt (>) and press the RETURN (or ENTER) key.

AGAIN - The computer will act as if you had typed your previous command again. For instance, typing BLOW THE WHISTLE then typing AGAIN would be like blowing the whistle twice in a row. You can abbreviate AGAIN to G.

BRIEF - After this command, the computer will tell you all about a place or thing only the first time you see it. If you see it again later, the computer will tell you only that it is there. This is the normal way that the computer will act, unless you use the VERBOS or SUPERBRIEF command. SUPERBRIEF tells the computer to tell you only the name of a place you have entered, even the first time you see it. Of course, you can always type LOOK to get a description of a place, and the things there. In SUPERBRIEF mode, there is no blank line between turns. SUPERBRIEF is for players who are already very familiar with the story. VERBOS tells the computer to tell you all about a place or thing every time you see it.

HINT - If you have difficulty while playing the story, and you can’t figure out what to do next, just type HINT. You will see a list of questions you can ask. Just follow the directions at the top of your screen to see the hint of your choice.

INVENTORY - The computer will tell you what you are carrying and wearing. You can abbreviate INVENTORY to I.

LOOK - This tells the computer to describe your location in full detail. You can abbreviate LOOK to L.
OOPS - If you accidentally misspell a word, and the computer doesn’t recognize it, you can fix it at the next prompt (>) by typing OOPS and the correct word. For example, if you typed GIVE THE MANGIFYING GLASS TO HOLMES and were told “[I don’t know the word ‘mangifying.’]” you could type OOPS MANGIFYING instead of typing the whole sentence again.

QUIT - This lets you stop. If you want to save your place before stopping, follow the instructions in the “Starting and Stopping” section on page 8. You can abbreviate QUIT to Q.

RESTART - This stops the story and starts it over from the beginning.

RESTORE - This lets you continue from any point where you used the SAVE command. See “Starting and Stopping” on page 8 for more details.

SAVE - This puts a “snapshot” of your place in the story onto a storage disk. You can use the RESTORE command at a later time to continue from the same place. See “Starting and Stopping” on page 8 for more details.

SCORE - The computer will give you your current score in the story.

SCRIPT - This command tells your printer to begin making a transcript of the story as you play. A transcript may help you remember things, but you don’t need it to play. It will work only on certain computers; read your Reference Card for details.

SUPERBRIEF - See BRIEF above.

UNDO - You can use this command to “back up” one move. Note that this command works only on certain computers with enough memory.

UNSCRIPT - This commands your printer to stop making a transcript.

VERBOSE - See BRIEF above.

VERSION - The computer responds by showing you the release number and the serial number of your copy of the story. Please send us this information if you ever report a “bug” in the story.

WAIT - This will make time pass in the story while you do nothing. For example, if you get in a boat, you might WAIT to see where it will take you; or if you meet someone, you might WAIT to see what will happen. You can also wait a specified number of minutes; for instance, you can WAIT FOR 15 MINUTES or WAIT FOR 40 MINUTES. You can abbreviate WAIT to Z.

WAIT UNTIL (time) - This causes time to pass until the desired time arrives. For instance, you can WAIT UNTIL 12 or WAIT UNTIL 3:35. If anything interesting happens during this time, you will have a chance to stop waiting.

Tips for Novices
1. Draw a map showing each location and the directions connecting it to adjoining locations. When you find yourself in a new location, make a note of any interesting objects there. (See the small sample map that goes along with the sample transcript on page 3.) There are 10 possible directions (NORTH, SOUTH, EAST, WEST, NORTHEAST, NORTHWEST, SOUTHEAST, SOUTHWEST, UP, and DOWN) plus IN and OUT.
2. EXAMINE all objects you come across in the story. You can abbreviate EXAMINE to X.
3. If you find an object that you think you can use, TAKE IT. Some objects will help you solve some of the puzzles.
4. Save your place often. That way, if you mess up or get “killed,” you won’t have to start over from the beginning. See page 9 for instructions.
5. Read the story carefully! There are often clues in the descriptions of locations and objects.
6. Try everything you can think of - even strange or dangerous actions may provide clues, and might prove to be fun! You can always save your position first if you want. Here’s a silly example:

> GIVE THE RUBBER DUCK TO THE GUARD DOG
The guard dog isn’t interested in a rubber bone, let alone a rubber duck. He continues to growl and stare at your throat.

Here you have a clue that maybe giving something else to the guard dog (like a steak) would be better.

7. Unlike other “adventure games” you may have played, there are many possible routes to the end of the story. If you get stuck on one puzzle, move on to another. Some puzzles have more than one solution; other puzzles don’t need to be solved at all. Sometimes you will have to solve one puzzle in order to obtain the item(s) or information you need to solve another puzzle.

8. You may find it helpful to go through the story with another person. Different people may find different puzzles easy and can often complement each other.

9. If you really have difficulty, you can type HINT. The screen will then show you a list of questions to which you can get answers. (Simply follow the directions at the top of your screen to see the hint of your choice.) You don’t need to use the hints to enjoy the story, but it will make solving the puzzles easier.

10. Read the sample transcript on page 3 to get a feel for how Infocom’s interactive fiction works.

11. You can word a command in many different ways. For example, if you wanted to take a black bag, you could type in any of the following:

> GET BAG
> TAKE THE BAG
> PICK UP THE BLACK BAG

If you type in a sentence that the computer doesn’t understand, try rewording the sentence or using synonyms. If the computer still doesn’t recognize your sentence, you are almost certainly trying to do something that you don’t need to do.

Common Complaints
The computer will complain if you type a command that confuses it completely. It will then ignore the rest of the input line if there are any more commands. (Certain events, such as being attacked or walking into something, may also cause the computer to ignore the rest of your commands, since the event may have changed your situation drastically.) Some of the computer’s complaints:

This story cannot understand the word “____” when you use it that way.
The computer knows the word you typed, but couldn’t understand it in that sense. Usually this is because the computer knows the word as a different part of speech. For example, if you typed DROP THE OPEN BAG, you are using OPEN as an adjective, but the computer might know OPEN only as a verb, as in OPEN THE WINDOW.

There are not any verbs in that sentence. Unless you are answering a question or typing a compass direction, each sentence must have a verb (or one of the special commands).

There are not enough nouns in that sentence. This usually means your sentence was incomplete, such as EAT THE BLUE or PUT THE BOOK IN THE.

There are too many nouns in that sentence. An example is PUT THE SOUP IN THE BOWL WITH THE LADLE, which has three noun “phrases,” one more than the computer can digest in a single action.

What? You pressed the RETURN (or ENTER) key without typing anything.

You cannot see that here. The thing in your sentence was not visible. It may be somewhere else, or inside a closed container.
You cannot refer to more than one object at a time with "_________." You can use multiple objects (that is, nouns or noun phrases separated by AND or or a comma) or the word ALL only with certain verbs. Among the more useful of these verbs are TAKE, DROP, and PUT. You can't use more than one object with most verbs, like EXAMINE; so you can't EXAMINE ALL or EXAMINE THE MATCH AND THE CIGARETTE.

Please try to express that another way. The computer thought the sentence you typed was nonsense, such as GIVE SHERLOCK WITH NEWSPAPER. Or you may have typed a reasonable sentence but used a syntax that the computer does not recognize, such as WAVE OVER THE FENCE. Try rephrasing the sentence.

If You Have Technical Problems
You can call the Infocom Technical Support Team to report "bugs" and technical problems, but not for hints to solve puzzles, at (617) 576-3190. If your disk develops a problem within ninety (90) days after purchase, we will replace it at no charge. Otherwise, there is a replacement fee of $5 (U.S. funds). If you call to report a bug, please provide your release number, which you can find by typing VERSION. Please return your registration card if you'd like to be on our mailing list and receive our newsletter.

Quick Reference Guide

1. To start the story ("boot up"), see the separate Reference Card in your package.

2. When you see the prompt (->) on your screen, the computer is waiting for your command. There are four kinds of sentences or commands that the computer recognizes:

A. Direction commands: To move from place to place, just type the direction you want to go to: NORTH, SOUTH, EAST, WEST, NORTHWEST, SOUTHWEST, UP, DOWN, IN, or OUT.

B. Actions: Just type whatever you want to do. Some examples: READ THE BOOK or OPEN THE DOOR or LOOK THROUGH THE MICROSCOPE or HOLD THE FRYING PAN OVER THE FIRE. Once you're familiar with simple commands, you'll want to use more complex ones as described in "Communicating with Infocom's Interactive Fiction" on page 9.

C. Commands given to people: To talk to characters in the story, type their name, then a comma, then what you want them to do. For example: HOLMES, TELL ME ABOUT THE NOTE or WIGGINS, GIVE ME THE SAPPHIRE.

D. Special commands: Some commands, such as INVENTORY or SUPERBIRD, give you specific information or affect your output. A list of these appears in the "Special Commands" section on page 11.

3. After typing your sentence or command, you must press the RETURN (or ENTER) key before the computer will respond.

4. Your location in the story and the day and time are displayed at the top of your screen on a special line called the status line.

5. You can pick up and carry many of the items you'll find in the story. For example, if you type TAKE THE FLASK, you will be carrying it. Type INVENTORY to see a list of the things you are carrying.

6. When you want to stop, save your place for later, or start over, read the "Starting and Stopping" section on page 8.

7. If you have trouble, refer to the specific section of the manual for more detailed instructions.

We're Never Satisfied

Here at Infocom, we take great pride in the quality of our stories. Even after they're "out the door," we're constantly improving, honing, and perfecting them.

Your input is important. No matter how much testing we do, it seems some "bugs" never crawl into view until thousands of you begin doing all those wild and crazy things to the story. If you find a bug, or if you think a certain puzzle was too hard or too easy, or if you have some other suggestion, or if you'd just like to tell us your opinion of the story, drop us a note! We love every excuse to stop working, and a letter from you is just such an excuse!

Moriarty has set a deadly trap for Sherlock Holmes, and only you can stop him...

Travel back in time to Victorian London, where the city is bustling with preparations for Her Majesty's Golden Jubilee. Crowds of sightseers and souvenir vendors fill the streets in eager anticipation of the Jubilee Week events. Newspapers detail the gala array of festivities. Sumptuous receptions for foreign dignitaries. Special services at Westminster Abbey. A Royal Procession through the streets of London. And the Queen reigning over all, resplendent in the Crown Jewels.

At least, that's the official plan. Unbeknownst to the celebrants thronging the city, a crisis has arisen: the Crown Jewels have been stolen from the Tower of London. If they're not recovered before the festivities begin, the theft will be exposed and the government will fall into international disgrace.

Only 48 hours remain to solve the crime. With Scotland Yard failing to make headway, the Prime Minister calls on Sherlock Holmes, the famous consulting detective. But riddles left at the scene of the crime include a direct challenge to Holmes, who suspects a deadly trap. To throw the scoundrel off his guard, Holmes turns the investigation over to you, his trusted cohort, Dr. Watson.

With Holmes by your side, you use your wits, intuition, and a myriad of clues to solve the riddles and piece together the mystery. Your search for the jewels and the villain leads you all over London, from the most popular tourist attractions to the seediest back alleys. As Big Ben strikes each successive hour and dangerous complications impede your progress, you realize you're facing that most dastardly of foes, Holmes's archnemesis... the vile Professor Moriarty.

Sherlock: The Riddle of the Crown Jewels is the first story in Infocom's new Immortal Legends series, developed by Challenge, Inc. Using Infocom's sophisticated development tools, Challenge lends its own brand of puzzles and plotting to interactive fiction. In The Riddle of the Crown Jewels, author Bob Bates brings Holmes's London to life, filling it with familiar characters and locations. On-screen hints provide clues when your magnifying glass falls short of the task.

And now, come, Watson! The game is afoot...
