SPECIAL FEATURES OF WORM WHOMPER™

Formula B*U*G pesticide. Every spray gun is filled with more pesticide than you could ever use. Each wisp of Formula B*U*G hits only the first pest in its path.

Plough balls. Plough balls eliminate every pest in their path. You start with three and are awarded three more for every wave of attacking pests that you exterminate.

Tool shed. Whenever any pest, other than an inchworm, touches a spray gun, the gun dissolves. Fortunately, so does the unlucky pest. To grab a replacement gun, rush Felton to his tool shed, and a new gun automatically appears in his hands. You have an unlimited supply of spray guns.

Snail shells and slug slime. Snails have a tendency to clutter up the corn field by dropping their shells. Formula B*U*G pesticide cannot penetrate these shells. Plough balls not only eliminate snail shells, but also all the unfortunate critters lurking behind the shells. Slugs sometimes leave slick slime trails in their wake. Inchworms that travel over slime trails momentarily pick-up speed. Wisps of Formula B*U*G pass right through slime trails, but plough balls are your only means of cleaning up the mess.

Moth eggs. Moths don’t actually eat corn. In fact, they don’t eat anything. However, they do lay eggs that become inchworms. And the closer the moth lays its eggs to the corn, the closer the inchworm is to a corn meal. Moth eggs cannot be destroyed by either Formula B*U*G pesticide or plough balls.

Withering corn. Corn plants shrink, wither and die when touched by any pest other than a moth or an inchworm. When an inchworm reaches a corn plant, the plant changes color from golden-yellow to brown. The second inchworm to touch the plant makes the plant wither and die.

Bonus corn plants. A new corn plant springs to life after every four waves of pests are exterminated. Felton’s field can never exceed 10 plants. So, if his corn field already has 10 plants when you earn a bonus plant, the bonus plant will grow when there is room.

Pest pause. If you are distracted from helping Felton protect his field of corn because you notice a pest of your own slithering under the sofa or feeding on some fruit, press 1 and 9 or 3 and 7 at the same time. Your TV screen will go dark. To resume the agricultural action, press the controller disk.

HOW TO BECOME A WORM WHOMPER™

Tips from Tom Loughry, designer of Worm Whomper™.

Tom Loughry has quickly established himself as a superb and versatile game designer for Activision. In addition to Worm Whomper™, Tom designed The Dreadnaught Factor™ for Intellivision®.

"As you will undoubtedly discover, protecting corn from invading bugs can be a full-time chore. And even then, there will always be at least one hungry bug that will survive the battle. Here's some pointers to help you control the number of bugs and increase the productivity of your crop.

"First of all, remember to spray the larger bugs first. They move the fastest and take the most spray to destroy.

"Also, it is especially important to exterminate the moths as soon as they appear. Although they don’t actually destroy the corn themselves, they do lay eggs that mature into hungry caterpillars. If moths have the chance to lay their eggs close to the corn, the caterpillars will only have a short distance to travel and feast.

"Another strategy is to save your plough balls for the later waves of attack. All of the bugs will be moving much faster and that’s when you’ll need the plough balls most.

"Finally, only defend those sections of the field that have corn growing on them. Don’t even worry about the sections of the field that have lost their corn, unless new stalks appear.

"I hope you reap a big harvest this year and when you get the chance, drop me a line. I’d love to hear from you. May God bless you."
